Chairman of the Board

At the Syrian Forum, our mission is to rebuild Syrian lives by cultivating active and capable communities from a cultural, political, economic, and social standpoint.

Driven by our devotion to Syria, we continue to expand our impact through six specialized institutions committed to restoring and developing infrastructure, training and employing future leaders, protecting and uplifting the most vulnerable, and so much more.

Our efforts have blossomed into strategic partnerships with nonprofit organizations, government institutions, and private enterprises. How We Work

Strong Program Design

The next step is ensuring a strong program design whereby the Programs Departments takes the identified gaps and creates a program that aims to address the root causes of these needs. Key community leaders and local councils are often consulted at this stage in order to better understand the feasibility of such programming.

Institutional Support

Ihsan works to support Local Councils and Civil Society Organizations by implementing joint projects, programs, and workshops.

Needs Based

Our approach to programs is one that is built on listening to the local communities and their needs because we ultimately believe that community ownership is key. Ihsan MEAL department leads on identifying community needs through various assessment tools including key informant interviews, focus group discussions and sample surveys.

Quality Implementation

Programs are most often implemented through Ihsan's field staff located throughout the 8 offices in Syria. Since the establishment of the organization, Ihsan has placed a concerted effort in building the capacity of all staff, including those on the front line. The experience of the staff has contributed to their ability to implement programs with high quality, ensuring the integration of key stakeholders and in line with humanitarian principles.

Monitoring, Evaluation, Accountability and Learning

A key function in the organization stems from our MEAL department, which remains independent of our Programs department. Through this function, we are able to monitor the outputs of programs and measure the impact of programs throughout baseline and regular assessments. This department also provides beneficiaries with a platform to offer feedback and share complaints in order to ensure that Ihsan is effectively addressing their needs. Finally, our MEAL department allows Ihsan to take lessons learned from previous projects and apply them moving forward in order to strengthen our future programming.

Internal Auditing KPMG

Ihsan contracts KPMG, an international enterprise specializing in tax, audit, and advisory services, to help develop the institution's policies and procedures in order to maintain the highest level of professionalism, transparency, and integrity.

Ihsan currently implements five programs including:

The program focused on two main tracks, Rapid Response and Development Projects.

Ihsan's projects this year were implemented in Aleppo, Idleb, Dar'a, Rural Homs and Rural Damascus.

Rapid Response

In 2017, Ihsan implemented several projects to restore damaged bakeries through the Cash for Jobs program, providing temporary employment to Syrians in greatest need. Workers received monthly salaries for the duration of the project.

Ihsan also helped designated bakeries maintain low prices to ensure that vulnerable families could afford to buy bread. Through this program, Ihsan provided regular and affordable deliveries of flour and yeast to select bakeries ensuring that each one sell bread at a set weight and price.

Development Projects

Throughout 2017, Ihsan developed its agricultural projects and successfully delivered high-quality materials, such as seeds, fertilizers, and fuel, to Syrian communities in need. Ihsan also provided livestock, feed, technical tools, and training courses to support the recovery of the sector.

An innovative institution, Ihsan increased the impact of emergency aid by offering technical training to local technicians and beneficiaries, particularly through the Good Agricultural Practices (GAPs) projects.

Ihsan also implemented a simple, scalable, and sustainable solution to water scarcity by developing a system for collecting rainwater and training beneficiaries to use this technique within their own households.

Ihsan organized several food-production activities to increase family income among vulnerable Syrians and enhanced the whole production process by helping beneficiaries find outlets to sell their products.

Ihsan also worked with farmers to implement intercropping, through which a particular crop is grown among plants of a different kind, to increase food diversity and ultimately the farmers' income.

NFI/Shelter

299,383

Beneficiaries

To support struggling communities, Ihsan provided winter clothing, blankets, solar lights, mattresses, heaters, and heating fuel to vulnerable families. In addition, the institution distributed winter aid vouchers, enabling recipients to select items that best addressed their own needs.

Throughout 2017, Ihsan provided life-saving aid to families fleeing violence and offered specialized support to those enduring harsh winter conditions in Idlib and Aleppo governorates.

Ihsan also repaired 40 homes that had been damaged by bombs in the villages of Badama and Armanaz, near Idlib. Team members cleared the rubble, repaired the structures, and restored running water and electricity to each home. They also installed water heaters and other necessities to enable the return of displaced families to their homes.

1 Medical waste treatments

Ihsan restored water stations, networks, and plumbing systems, primarily in Aleppo, Hama, and Idleb governorates.

Through the restoration process, Ihsan provided and installed electric generators, necessary pumps, water tanks, and fuel tanks. Ihsan also subsidized station operating costs, including the costs of fuel, chlorine for sterilization, employee wages, and regular maintenance, for three to five months. Ihsan trained station employees on monitoring machine performance to ensure optimum operation and offered workshops in coordination with Bousla for Training and Innovation. These workshops enabled participants to establish an effective payment system that would guarantee sustainability and properly reflect the amount of water consumed. In addition, Ihsan transported water tanks to areas lacking water resources or networks. This project gave families in rural Idleb access to 3,750 liters of potable chlorine-treated water per household.

Throughout 2017, Ihsan delivered 2,891 hygiene kits to displaced people from Aleppo. Ihsan also implemented a medical waste treatment project in Idleb governorate to protect public health. The institution collected medical waste from 30 hospitals and healthcare centers in Taftanaz, Bennsh, Sarmin, Ariha, Ma'ra An-Nu'man, Ehsem, and Kafr Nobol. The team sorted and transported the waste to a landfill in Mseibin, where it was incinerated and buried to minimize hazard.

Protection

389,309

Beneficiaries

Throughout 2017, Ihsan offered child protection services and provided support to survivors of gender-based violence, primarily in Aleppo, Idleb, Homs, and rural Damascus.

Child Protection

Ihsan continued to support its existing protection centers and also helped open new ones in Jarablus and Armanaz. Additionally, Ihsan offered new services within its existing centers in rural Aleppo, Homs, and Eastern Ghouta. Qualified mental health specialists worked in each center to provide social and emotional support, as well as to serve as caseworkers for the most vulnerable children. Additionally, mobile teams reached children who could not access the protection centers.

Ihsan also opened a youth support center that offers vocational training sessions and activities—including sports, open dialogue, and film screenings—to people between the ages of 16 and 24.

Gender-Based Violence

Throughout 2017, Ihsan offered services to survivors of gender-based violence and provided safe spaces for women and girls in rural Idleb, Aleppo, Homs, and Damascus. Ihsan's team completed a thorough training program before conducting projects focused on providing social and emotional support to survivors. The team also conducted vocational training and offered specialized services through caseworkers. Through these safe spaces, Ihsan empowered participants to invest in their abilities, improve their personal lives and emotional wellbeing, and obtain jobs in a variety of sectors.

Challenges to National Rebuilding after the Russian Intervention

As the crisis in Syria entered its seventh year, Omran released its third annual book, providing a systematic overview of the most significant changes in Syria in 2016. In the book, the authors examined Russian influence in the region, including the country's impact on the stagnation of economic and development activities in opposition areas. The authors also analyzed local administrative bodies and their potential to implement political transition and tighten security in Syrian communities.

The book emphasizes the importance of empowering Syrian civil society, especially the local councils, as a legitimate representative body. Despite the disparity in performance, local entities should fill the administrative void and counter the imbalance between the political views of the people and those of militant factions and traditional political bodies.

Changing the Security Sector in Syria

This book presents the technical, political, and social factors that drive change in the security sector in Syria. In the book, the authors outline a vision to achieve security sector reform and to rise above political competition among regional and international powers. They offer objective solutions, clear analysis of the current security situation, and recommendations on how to change it.

The book is divided into three main chapters. The first chapter outlines key concepts and policies required to achieve effective change within the security sector. The concepts include disarmament, reintegration, restructuring the sector, and learning from post-conflict management efforts in other countries. The second chapter examines the security situation in both regime- and opposition-controlled areas, as well as areas of self-governance. The third chapter explains the anticipated challenges and presents a practical approach to restructuring the security sector in Syria, from pre-transition (known as the peace-building phase) to stability.

Research Meeting: Local Councils and Security Sector Reform in Syria

In cooperation with the ORSAM, Omran held a meeting to discuss ways of empowering local councils by investing opportunities and responding to challenges, in addition to the principles of security sector reform in Syria and the security management scenarios in the different areas of control in Syria and the ways to govern them to achieve stability, which is the basis for the success of the transition process.

Workshop: Cooperation on Institutional Reform and Restoring Stability in Syria

Omran organized the workshop in partnership with the Geneva Center for Security Policy (GCSP). Thirty-five experts from the US, Russia, as well as Arab and European countries examined the potential for international cooperation on necessary institutional reform to restore stability in Syria. The discussion focused on institutional reforms in specific sectors during political transition.

Participants also presented a framework for the election process to address potential challenges following a political solution to the conflict.

Workshop: The Role of Civil Society in Security Sector Reform and Related Challenges

Building upon Omran's project to analyze security sector reform in Syria, the team conducted a workshop to discuss the role of civil society in Syria's transition to democracy, as well as its role in building a framework for security in post-conflict countries. Participants also discussed the security situation in regime-controlled areas and self-administration territories. This part of the discussion focused on the importance of transitional justice in the process of reforming the security sector.

Seminar: The Near East South Asia Center for Strategic Studies in Bangkok, Thailand

The seminar focused on new approaches to fighting violent extremism. In addition to Omran's experts, a number of scientists, military officers, diplomats, government officials, consultants, and lawmakers attended the event to discuss long- and short-term measures in fighting violent extremist groups.
